

New GAD tables

23 February 2009

HMRC have published new GAD tables - to reflect falling gilt yields.

Some of you will remember GAD rates being based on gilt yields as high as 10%, but the new tables published in April 2006 had a gilt yield range of 3% to 8%.

The GAD rate for February fell to 3.75% and the rate for 5 year gilts (used to calculate children's pensions) fell below 3%, so HMRC have now published rates with a range of 2% to 8%.

The spreadsheet has finally been amended so that the gilt yield at the top of the columns now stays in view when you scroll down!

There is no change in the actual rates for yields between 3% and 8%.
